With the current UK and Global political uncertainty, there has never been a more volatile environment for Automotive manufacturing to plan and deliver product into the medium and long term future. The Pace of technical innovation in the sector is breath-taking, with little dispute that Electric vehicles are the future and coming fast and real-time trials with autonomous vehicles well under way. The very model of how we own and use vehicles as individuals and businesses is undergoing a revolution and our panel address these challenges and take a look at what it all means for the future of business transport.

Dan Harris

Dan is an international marketing director who has worked in Europe, UK and USA for leading companies (Apple Computer, McAfee Security, Mitel Networks, Virgin, Europe Online, UBS Securities) and creates engaging on and offline content for clients. He is a presenter at trade shows and business forums, a regular guest speaker on BBC Radio Gloucestershire and BBC Radio Five Live, an executive producer and presenter of a business video series and Vice President of the Cheltenham Chamber of Commerce.
